

South River Consulting Appoints Kevin S. Kahoe as Firm Principal

Procurement Expert in Deregulated Energy Market

COLUMBIA, MD (November 1, 2001)---South River Consulting, LLC, specializing in a comprehensive range of energy procurement services, has appointed Kevin S. Kahoe as a principal of the firm.

Kahoe specializes in assisting commercial and industrial energy users to prepare for the deregulated energy market by developing procurement strategies, including supplier selection, pricing options and contract considerations and negotiation.

Prior to joining South River Consulting, he was with Enron Energy Services and has also served as Vice President, Commercial Sales for Pepco Energy Services. He began his career with Kahoe Petroleum as a sales and operations manager.

He is a 1988 graduate of Loyola College and resides in Bel Air with his wife and two children.

About South River Consulting

Founded in 1998, South River Consulting, LLC (SRC) provides commercial and industrial energy users across the country with a comprehensive range of procurement and risk management advisory services. Based on their broad experience in energy transactions on the buy as well as on the sell sides of the market; commodity trading; power generation and transmission; and utility rate structures; SRC is uniquely positioned to assist end users in the development and execution of procurement strategies and also in the ongoing management of their energy accounts. SRC's capabilities include contract development and negotiation, distributed power plant development services, economic and technical evaluation, and project development and financing.

###